NO MORE BLACK POWDER.

(By Telegraph).

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2. Probably the navy has fought its has battle with black powder. Bids were opened at the Navy Department for supplying the new warships with one million pounds of smokeloss powder, a quantity sufficient to supply at least the scortdary latteries of all the ships in theservice, and this supply will be augmented from time to those and with made course of a year or two all of the black powder will have been refired, except possibly some that will be related for saluting purposes. There were six bids received baday at the department and opened by Judge Advectate Lendy, in the presence of representatives of most of the bidders, prominent among them being Mrs. Maria Dittnar, head of the powder concern bearing that name. The bids on an average were about the same as the navy is now paying for its powder, and slightly below the figure paid by the army under the emergency created by the war.

Mr. Peck Says That We Must Strive Now to Make Up for Lost Time.

16 Successit the Late Moves, F. Harmy on Commissioner and Intends That This Country Shall Re Well Represented—He Is a Chicago Man Wh. Has Mad Experi-ence With the Expositions at Chicago, Al-lanta, Nashville, Omaha and Elsewhere.

fanta, Nashville, Omaha and Elsewhere.
Ferdinand Peck, of Chicago, Commissioner-General for the United States to the Paris Exposition of 1900, in conversation with a reporter, said: "France appropriated $1,000,000 to defray the cost of her exhibit at our Columbian Exposition, and we ought at least to have that much money in order to make a showing at Paris commen surate with our National prestige. We have lagged behind all other nations. have lagged behind all other nations, too, in accepting the invitation of France to participate, and on that ac-count have put ourselves at a great disadvantage. On account of our slow prediction with the property of the property o all goods intended for exhibit must be listed and entered by next Pebruary, which will be an impossibility so far as we are concerned, so I shall have to make a plea for more time for American exhibitors, can exhibitors,

"The question of having a Government building is one of some difficulty.

The rule over there is that no nation can have a building unless its ruler or president attends the Exposition in person. Under our Constitution Presi person. Under our Constitution President McKinley cannot, during his term of office, visit a foreign country. Perhaps this rule may be relaxed in our favor; but, if not, we will have to do without our own structure. Our Gov.

e culling out of intended exhibits will be a herculean task, for as we will have but a limited space, only the very best will be considered. This is the task to which I expect to devote most of my energies, and therefore will spend the greater part of my time be-tween this and the opening of the Ex-position at the Commission's head-quarters in Chicago.

"This commemoration of the cen tury's close will be a unique spectacle and at the French capital will be gath-ered the most enormous aggregation of humanity ever known at an international display. people will attend during the life of the Exposition, which will more than double the number we had at Chicago," Mr. Peck had a conference with the President, who suggested that the rep resentation of this Government should be conducted on a broad, generous plane. The President agreed that there should be an additional appropriation of $100. 900 for the expenses of our representation there, the present appropriation for the purpose being $650,000. As Commissioner General to the Paris exposition Mr. Peck will not gain
